The Primacy of Love in Ten Exceptional Films

Loosely inspired by the Mosaic “Ten Commandments”, the ten short films of Krzysztof Kieslowski’s Decalogue (1989) are an awesome artistic achievement. In the complex moral issues they raise, the Decalogue films never become didactic or dogmatic. Set in Catholic, Communist Poland, the films develop a provocative dialogue between their two writers: the “atheist,” Kieslowski, and the Catholic lawyer, Krzysztof Piesiewicz. The films are rigorously consistent in their sharp focus on the pre-eminence of the commandment to love in the New Testament. “The entire law is fulfilled in this: ‘Love your neighbor as yourself.’”
